WANT A SEPARATE ENCAMPMENT

Engineers Are Asking for Opportunity to Get Field Work in Special Engineering Camp

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

NEW YORK, May 9.—The hardest of all military posts to fill in a time of emergency is that of an officer in the engineers. It takes a long time to train a soldier, and longer still to train an officer of the line. But as for making a man into an engineer—it simply can not be done in less than years, unless you take an engineer to start with.

Engineers Big Factor

It is this fact that makes the big preparedness movement among American engineers of first importance. The trained technical men of the United States are one of our biggest military resources, once they are put in a position where they can be called on when needed. The engineers have set out of their own accord to learn something of the military side of their business, so that they will be ready in case of war to do the work that has to be done.

The European war has shown the importance of the engineering arm more clearly than ever. The Germans have always laid stress on this branch, and went into the conflict well supplied with engineering companies; yet since the war began the proportion of engineers to total troops has almost been doubled. It is easy to see where field engineers are essential in a war of trenches, of bridges quickly built and destroyed, of big guns continually being moved and dismantled, of mines and counter-mines, of wire entanglements and bomb-proof dug-outs—a war, in a word, such as all modern war bids fair to become.

Need 30,000 Engineers

In any sort of a war worth mentioning, the United States would have to call for half a million troops, whether these troops were actually called upon for active service or not. At present, it is estimated that the strength of the engineering troops should be about 6 per cent of the total strength. Thus the army of half a million would call for 30,000 engineers, and these 30,000 engineers would need 1,200 officers. At present, the army possesses about 240 engineer officers, and only a few more than half of these men are engaged in actual military work. The rest are employed on government projects such as the Panama canal, which call for a high degree of engineering skill, but are really civilian engineering work, except for the small portion dealing with the construction of works of defense.

The engineers' preparedness movement had its beginning in New York. The engineers' work as a rule is such that he lives, or at least makes his headquarters in a big city. Hence the idea as it spread, went from one metropolis to another, until the list now includes such places as Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Detroit and Buffalo. The latest recruit is San Francisco.

Boat Cleared from New York April 28 with No Passengers But Heavy War Shipments

LONDON, May 9.—The White Star liner Cymric was torpedoed yesterday afternoon by a German submarine. It sank at 3 o'clock this morning while attempting to make her way into an Irish port. There were no Americans aboard as far as is known.

All the 110 officers and crew of the Cymric were saved, according to a Lloyd's dispatch from Queenstown. An earlier message said that several vessels were proceeding to the Cymric's assistance and it is assumed that the rescue steamers took off the crew.

SAY FIVE PERISHED

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Five out of the crew of 107 perished in the torpedoing of the White Star Cymric off the Irish coast yesterday afternoon according to cablegrams from Consul Frost at Queenstown today. His first message said: "Cymric torpedoed 4 P. M. today, 138 miles west of Fastnet. Do not think sunk. (Later messages said sunk)." Will supply details as they arrive.

A second message said: "Cymric cleared New York April 28 without passengers. Supposed mixed cargo with horses. On admiralty service. Torpedo hit engine room, explosion killing five out of a crew of 107. Absence of warning inferable. Ship still afloat, but provisionally abandoned. Survivors will probably land Bantry, May 9."

A third message, received this forenoon, said: "Cymric sank 3 A. M., crew arriving Bantry about noon."

Frost's report that the Cymric was in "admiralty" service presented fresh complications. If it is true that the liner had been taken over by the admiralty and was therefore a ship of war the United States would have no concern as to any attack made on her.

On the contrary, it was pointed out, customs officials at the port of New York would not have granted clearance papers to a ship engaged in unneutral service. The very fact that the Cymric was allowed to clear indicated that her status was not different from that of any other merchantman guaranteed immunity from an attack without warning under the German pledge.

AFTER INFORMATION

In view of Germany's latest pledge, American consuls were directed today to obtain detailed information regarding the torpedoing and sinking of the White Star liner Cymric. It is not known whether the Cymric was torpedoed without warning. It was pointed out, that even should it be learned that the Cymric was torpedoed without warning that fact would not offer proof that U-boat commanders were not keeping faith with America. New instructions have been issued to the German submarine commanders in accordance with German pledges to the United States but it is quite possible that the U-boat which attacked the Cymric left its base before the new orders were issued from Berlin.

Believe No Americans Aboard

The White Star offices believe that no Americans were among the crew of 110 carried by the Cymric, though one or two American sailors may have been taken on at New York. The liner was capable of on-

GERMANY PUT ON PROBATION IN REPLY TO RECENT SUBMARINE NOTE

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Following is the text of the note cabled yesterday by Secretary Lansing to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin with instructions to deliver it to the German minister of foreign affairs:

"The note of the imperial German government, under date of May 4, 1916, has received careful consideration by the government of the United States. It is especially noted as indicating the purpose of the imperial government, as to the future, that it is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operation of the war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents, and that it is determined to impose upon all its commanders at sea the limitations of the recognized rules of international law upon which the government of the United States has insisted."

U. S. Guided by Friendly Relations

"Throughout the months which have elapsed since the imperial government announced on Feb. 4, 1915, its submarine policy, now happily abandoned, the government of the United States has been constantly guided and restrained by motives of friendship in its patient efforts to bring to an amicable settlement the critical questions arising from that policy."

"Accepting the imperial government's declaration of its abandonment of the policy which has so seriously menaced the good relations between the two countries, the government of the United States will rely upon a scrupulous execution henceforth of the now altered policy of the imperial government such as will remove the principal danger to an interruption of the good relations existing between the United States and Germany."

Action Not Contingent on Other Nation's Course

"The government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes it for granted that the imperial German government does not intend to imply that the maintenance of its newly announced policy is in any way contingent upon the course or result of diplomatic negotiations between the government of the United States and any other belligerent government, notwithstanding the fact that certain passages in the imperial government's note of the 4th instant might appear to be susceptible of that construction."

"In order, however, to avoid any possible misunderstanding the government of the United States notifies the imperial government that it cannot for a moment entertain, much less discuss, a suggestion that respect by German naval authorities for the rights of citizens of the United States upon the high seas should, in any way or in the slightest degree, be made contingent upon the conduct of any other government affecting the rights of neutrals and noncombatants. Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative."

NO TRACE FOUND OF LARSON BOY WILL DRAG RIVER

Although Police Have Not Given Up Hope He Is Alive They Can Find No Clue

Mystery today still shrouds the disappearance of Lawrence Larson, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Larson, Avon street. All efforts of the police to locate the youngster have come to nothing. Except for a shoemaker of the neighborhood who says he saw the boy at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, no trace can be found of him since he left his home at noon Saturday, bound for Copeland park on his roller skates.

Is He in River?

That he fell into the river is the hypothesis most favored by the police today, although they have not yet given up hope that he will be discovered alive. They point out that no motive for kidnapping Lawrence can be found since his parents are not wealthy enough to pay a ransom, and have no enemies of their knowledge. Dragging Black river was to be begun this afternoon as a final attempt to solve the mystery of the boy's disappearance.

"I cannot believe my boy is dead," said Mrs. Larson today, three days after she had last seen her son. "I feel that he has been carried away or is held captive somewhere where he cannot get out. I have run down every rumor and find that there is no evidence to support any of the the-

John Coady, oldest living inhabitant of the city, the first city marshal of La Crosse, is ill at his home, 615 Division street. He has been ailing for three weeks, and is confined to his bed. He was able to be up for a short time yesterday, and was reported somewhat better this morning.

Mr. Coady is 87 years old. A native of Tipperary, Ireland, he came to La Crosse in 1853, traveling across country with his parents in a prairie schooner. He was the first municipal officer of the peace, and was continuously a member of the police force from its organization in 1884 until 1908, when he retired on a pension.

Second Expedition Gallops Across The Border After Glenn Springs Raiders While El Paso Negotiations Come to Crisis

THREE STATES GUARD CALLED OUT

Texas, Arizona and New Mexico Citizen Soldiery Go To The Line To Act as Border Patrol and More Regulars Are Sent

WASHINGTON, May 9.—General Obregon has demanded that a time limit be set upon the stay of American troops in Mexico.

The United States government will refuse positively to accede to any such limitation, it was decided at today's cabinet meeting. The government's policy will be to continue to refuse to make a time limit.

Generals Scott and Obregon expect to have one more conference at least. This will determine whether they can reach any terms acceptable to the United States. At that conference it is likely the Mexican terms will be put in writing.

If Obregon stands pat on his agreement he will be flatly told the United States cannot accept any such conditions, inasmuch as by setting a time limit it might find itself in the position of quitting the border before danger of future raids had been eliminated.

Word of Obregon's demand transmitted here by General Scott. He expected to file a message, presumably after a conference today.

Reports that Obregon had threatened to use Carranza troops against American soldiers if they remained in Mexico were said not to be "exact" although stories bearing on this were said not to be entirely without foundation but the real fact goes only so far as a demand for a time limit.

EL PASO, Texas, May 9.—A report, partially discredited in Washington, that General Obregon has threatened Carranza troops would be sent against the American forces in Mexico unless they are withdrawn at once, is current here. The threat is said to have been made at last night's conference between Generals Scott and Obregon. Immediately after the meeting Scott sent a long confidential dispatch to Secretary Baker at Washington.

General Scott today sent O. P. Brown, war department agent, to Juarez to arrange for a conference late today.

It was learned definitely today that General Obregon did not present an ultimatum in last night's conference with Scott. He did, however, refuse to sign the agreement unless concessions regarding the withdrawal of the expedition were incorporated in it.

Working unseen, interventionist forces were active along the border today, striving mightily to upset the negotiations between Generals Scott and Obregon for a solution of the Mexican situation. The decision of American commanders to send the Marathon expedition across the border caused friction in last night's meeting between the two war leaders, coming in the face of General Carranza's request for the withdrawal of the Pershing column and the meeting broke up without a conclusion having been reached. Though no arrangements have been made for another meeting, there is a feeling that negotiations have not yet been declared off. Indications pointed to another conference within the next few days.

While Mexican authorities suspected that European interventionists had prior knowledge that the Glenn Springs raid was to be made, there is a distinct suspicion here that the guiding force lay nearer home.

Intervention Two, Interested? Officials acquainted with the situation said intervention might be desired by two interests. European powers, who might desire that the United States forces be occupied with the job of intervening for the influence such a campaign would have on the American attitude toward European conflict, and American inter-

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Secretary of War Baker today announced President Wilson has authorized the calling out of the militia of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico.

Baker declared the outbreak of Mexican raiding in the Big Bend country of Texas had so far emphasized the danger of further attacks that President Wilson authorized the militia's call.

General Obregon, Carranza war minister, again demanded a time limit on the stay of the American expedition in Mexico. The cabinet decided again to refuse the demand.

The calling on state militia to assist the regular forces in an international crisis is the first instance of its kind since the Spanish-American war.

Secretary Baker said no consideration had been given the question of calling on any other states for militia. No instructions or inquiries concerning their readiness have been sent out, he said.

The militia organizations of these three states comprise 5,360 officers and men, fully armed and equipped. General Funston is authorized to dispose of the fresh troops, militia and regulars, as he sees fit. Secretary Baker emphasized that the move is for "border protection." Yet the forces will be available for service inside Mexico if required.

At present there are about 18,000 regulars in Mexico and about 10,000 along the border.

The president's step will require no action by congress, unless militia commanders decide the militia of the three states must be used across the border. In such an event the militia would have to be enrolled as volunteers, thereby losing their state militia identity.

In sending new troops, President Wilson virtually drained the last of the regular armed forces of the United States, before ordering out, the national guardsmen.

The Scott-Obregon conference probably will come to naught unless the new troop moves convince Obregon his demands are futile. Army men frankly said:

"The situation is not good, and we might as well prepare for trouble."

Break with Carranza?

The view of the situation taken by many here was that General Obregon has broken with General Carranza, and taken affairs into his own hands. Reports of a break have circulated from time to time recently. Obregon has had opportunity to rally certain of the leaders of northern Mexico if he desired and he may believe he is now in a strategic position to gain control of the government.

Obregon is known as one of the keenest men and best military commanders in all Mexico.

Secretary Baker expected the militia called out today to be on duty at the border within 24 hours after the commanding officers received the orders. Army men, however, believed it would take at least two or three days before the national guardsmen are in harness and patrolling the boundary line.

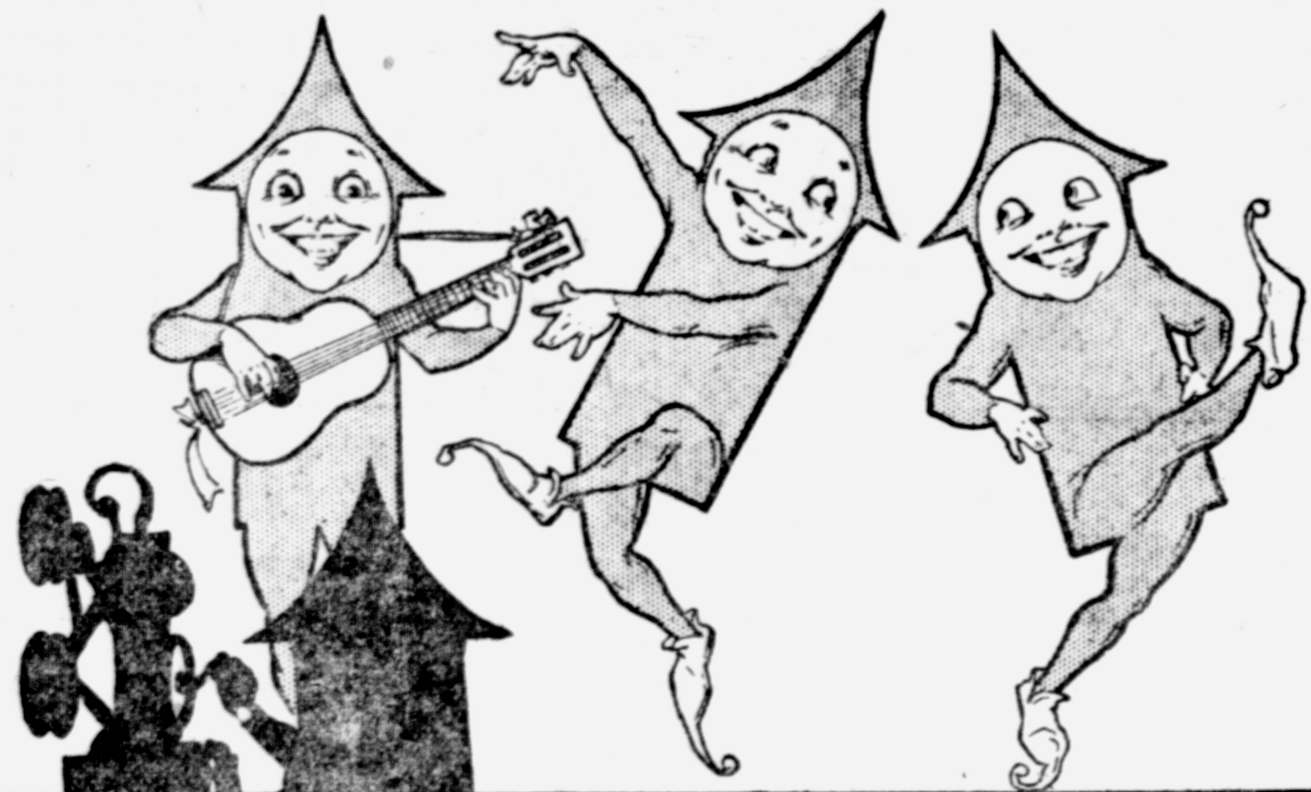

Baker issued the following statement immediately after the announcement:

"The outbreak in the Big Bend district of the Rio Grande has so far further emphasized the danger of similar occurrences along our long border that the president has called out the militia of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico, and has directed them to report to General Funston who will assign them stations along the border for patrol duty."

A treaty with this country says that when one of their residents meets death violently at the hands of United States agents, Uncle Sam shall adopt the decedent's family.

PROPOSE CHANGE OF CHURCH RITUAL

SARATOGA, N. Y., May 9.—Radical changes were provided in a revised ritual which was submitted to the Methodist conference yesterday for action. This marked the third attempt at revision, previous efforts in 1908 and 1912 having proved unsuccessful. Any change in the language of the historic ritual which John Wesley provided for his followers when he instituted the church, has always been opposed by the conservatives.

Among the changes suggested by the revisionists was the proposition that the word "devil" be stricken from all passages and that the word "sin" be substituted.

A service for the burial of children and receiving them into the church is also provided.

The words "and with my worldly goods I thee endow," are stricken from the marriage service on the ground that the ceremony itself implies common ownership of property.

Phrases intended to imply that the resurrection would be of the body instead of the spirit also are rejected such as "yet in my flesh shall I see God."

Lively discussion was expected today when the proposition was laid before the conference.

Splendid Laxative for Elderly People

Has Been Prescribed by Well Known Physician for Many Years.

The infirmities of age are especially manifest in a tendency to constipation, and call for treatment that will afford relief in an easy, natural manner. The rapid action of cathartic remedies and purgatives that shock the system should be avoided, more especially as the relief they offer is only temporary and is usually more than offset by disturbance to the vital organs caused by their violent action.

Nearly thirty years ago Dr. W. B. Caldwell, Monticello, Ill., prescribed a compound of simple laxative herbs that has since become the standard household remedy in thousands of homes. It acts easily and gently, yet with positive effect, without griping or other pain or discomfort. Mrs. Rachael Allen, Galesburg, Kans., is seventy-one years old, and after using a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, wrote that it had done her a world of good and that she intends to keep it in the house always.

Druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

A DOG AND CAT AFFAIR

BY LOUISE OLIVER

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Madeline dipped the hot syrup strawberries out of the big kettle on to four large platters on the table, and turned out the burners of the gasoline stove. She surveyed her morning's work proudly. "Even mother couldn't do better," she exulted, "and this is my first attempt. All afternoon in the hot sun on the porch to evaporate the extra moisture and my sun cooked berries will be fit for a king."

Lifting one platter at a time in her strong, white arms, she carried them to a bench on the back of the houseboat on which the Cardwells spent four months every summer.

The last platter placed in position for its sun bath, Madeline rested her elbows on the rail and looked over at the water. A cool breeze blew the moist little rings of hair about her eyes, and even in her berry-stained gingham dress she was not by any means the least attractive object in a very beautiful landscape.

The spot chosen for anchoring the Crescent, the Cardwell's houseboat, was an arm or bayou of the beautiful Merribee river. The water here stretched out like a lake and the trees all around grew close to the water's edge. On an island a short distance below, was Greenglade, a fashionable summer resort, with an immense hotel in its center.

Madeline, leaning over the water, heard a whistle and listened intently. "There's the steamer with the new arrivals at the dock. I wonder if Austin Maycourt, the much expected, is among them. Here I am up to my ears preserving berries for mother to give as Christmas gifts to our relatives next winter, and every other girl within a radius of ten miles is primping for the dance tonight." She tossed back her curls and stood upright, raising her arms high above her head. "I don't care! I'll have a better time than any of them for all of their shampooing and primping. What's more, I don't care whether Mr. Austin Maycourt looks at me or not." She pirouetted up the deck. "My, but it's hot when the wind stops. I believe I'll get into my bathing suit and have a swim to cool off."

In a few minutes a figure in a blue silk swimming suit and rubber cap climbed to the top of the rail, gave a little spring and disappeared like a knife blade under the smooth surface of the water. There was scarcely a ripple.

"Bravo!" cried a young man in flannels, who had just appeared on the island shore unseen by the water nymph. "That was a bully dive, by George! Here Krist, come back, sir!" to his dog. But Krist, a big wolf hound, was in the water headed for the boat and refused to turn.

Madeline, swimming under water, came up on the opposite bank, then turned and for her horror saw a dog swimming for dear life toward the boat. "My berries!" she cried in dismay and plunged instantly into the water again. "If he gets there first he'll ruin them!" wondering why she had been so foolish as to set them so close to the shore. "I can just see him sticking his tongue into every one of the plates, the beast!" And she strained her muscles to extra effort.

But the dog won the race! Just at first, he didn't see the berries, but kept sniffing around for Taj, the Persian cat, that Madeline had locked in the dining room. But, giving it up as a bad job, he returned to the porch, and lo, the berries! A long, red tongue shot out and he tasted.

Baking Powder Biscuits

Light as a Feather

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Baking Powder Biscuits made by this recipe are so far ahead of ordinary baking powder biscuits that, if once tried, you will never use any other recipe. Try it the next time you run short of bread. Save this recipe.

K C Baking Powder Biscuits

Three cups flour; 1/4 to 1/2 cup shortening; 3 level teaspoonsful K C Baking Powder; about 1 cup milk or water; 1 teaspoonful salt.

Sift three times, the flour, salt and baking powder. Work into the flour the shortening, using lard or butter for shortening. Then mix to a very soft dough with the milk. The softer the biscuit enters the oven, the lighter it comes out. Never knead baking powder biscuits; press the dough into shape and roll lightly. Cut in small shapes and bake on a sheet or very shallow pan in a hot oven. In placing biscuits in the pans place well apart, not allowing edges to touch. Small biscuits are better than large ones. Large biscuits do not have the proper amount of time to raise and bake.

he lapped awhile, essayed another search for the cat, and then returned to sample another platter.

"Krist! Here Krist! Come here, sir!" the man commanded from the shore. But Krist was having a good time and merely shook himself—a heavy shower of drops flying into the fruit-laden platters.

Madeline pulled herself up the steps and saw the devastation of her morning's work. She gave a little scream of dismay. "You nasty, horrid beast, get out of here! I—I'd like to kill you!"

"Krist, here, Krist!" And this time being satisfied, Krist went.

Madeline went to the dance that night in a belligerent mood. "Now, dear," admonished her mother, who had returned, "be careful what you do and say. It's only a matter of a few berries anyway and what is that to having a reputation for being a—"

Madeline finished. "A termagant. Just because I'm honest and independent and say what I think, the other girls think I'm odd. Well, I won't be a hypocrite, and I get along just as well as they do!"

"So far you have, dear, but independence isn't a good thing always, nor intolerance. If we expect tolerance from others—"

"Oh, mother dear, pigeonhole that particular lecture, please. My motto is, 'Never do anything to require tolerance and you won't have to ask for it.' That man had no business to let his dog get away. I'm sure it was Austin Maycourt, and that only makes it worse. He's spoiled and petted wherever he goes, and he thinks the king can do no wrong. Good-by, mother dear. Don't sit up. Come along, Bob," to her brother. "Is the launch ready?"

That evening Austin Maycourt asked for a dance after he had been presented, and Madeline refused, saying she was tired.

"Well, I'd rather sit it out with you anyway, if I may," he suggested.

Madeline did not answer. "I take it that silence gives consent," as he sat down. "You see, I'm anxious to find out what my dog did today."

She told him briefly and forcibly; also what she thought of the whole matter.

"But you'll let me pay for the berries surely!" he cried in consternation.

"You can settle with mother if you like, but I gave up a good game of tennis for those berries, and I can't see that you can help that much." And, do what he could, Austin could not make Madeline unbend. "Evidently I'm in wrong here," he thought, and under some pretext or another he got away.

The next day Madeline, armed with her racquet, turned her boat for the mainland. In the stern sat Taj, the cat. "You must be very good today, puss. Remember, you owe this vacation to the cut on your paw that I want the doctor to see. And while I'm playing tennis you must take a nap and be very quiet."

So Madeline played in a double set and Taj, with a bandaged foot, slept near by. But by and by he woke up, and, feeling like exploring, slipped away unnoticed by his mistress. A row of cottages stood across the street from the court and several windows were open. Taj leaped through one of these. Then Madeline missed him.

"Puss, here, puss! Kitty, kitty, kitty! Oh, I must find him," she cried.

She left the court and gave chase to her pet. In the middle of the road she met Austin Maycourt and bowed. But before they passed Taj appeared with something green in his mouth. Austin leaped for the cat and caught him, taking a dead bird from his mouth.

"It's Peter! My pet parakeet," he cried. "We let him run over the house because he was so tame. Poor little Peter!" stroking the lifeless little bunch of feathers.

Madeline wept softly as she touched the bird. "I'm sorry! It's all my fault. I let my cat get away. Oh, what can I do to make up for it?"

"Be a little kind to me," suggested Austin promptly.

"I will," she promised. "Come over to the boat and I will give you a cup of tea."

Adversity borrows its sharpest stings from our impatience.

GRANDMOTHER'S MEDICINES

Our grandmothers were wise in the virtues of the herbs of the field. They used to gather and store roots and herbs and use them to cure the ailments of their families—worm-wood, thoroughwort, sage, rue, camomile—the list might go on and on of the healing plants with which they made us familiar.

Now their grand-daughters get the extracts from just such good old roots and herbs, from the nearest druggist, ready prepared for use. One such medicine, which women find best for their own ailments, is the well-known Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Searchlight
SELLING SHOES BY AUTOMOBILE
A versatile New York shoe dealer has utilized the motorcycle in advertising and selling his newest stock. He had the cycle fitted out with a light and attractive case exhibiting half a dozen different styles in footwear. He sends this motor out to the homes of prospective customers and frequently receives orders for every style in the case upon a single trip. It is operated by an efficient salesman who frequently stops to let an interested group of people to have a close view of the shoes and to order them if desired.

PRESIDENCIES AS BANQUET FAVORS

With so many "Gary dinners", in which Gary fairies give away presidencies with lavish hands and big-stick wands, no wonder people are wondering who gave Mr. Root the presidency.

Of course Mr. Root would not have announced his candidacy had not some good Gary fairy terrapined him the charm-ed promise, and since givers of presidencies are few, even in the United States, it should be possible to locate the donor and thus forecast the platform.

With Roosevelt, the bolter, and Root, the steam roller, in the convention, there remains but the entrance of Mr. Taft to make complete the total repudiation of the strife of 1912 and to insure for 1916 a brand of harmony that could be fittingly described only in the picturesque vernacular of our pious political strange-bed-fellow, "Jim" Tawney.

Wonderful, wonderful democracy! Down east some wholesale blacksmith of a Gary gives a dinner to several gentlemen who for the moment have no conflicting arrangements with the sheriff, and next day we set about wondering whom they selected for our next president, without ever a thought of such les majeste as a dissenting opinion.

In this connection there arises a grave question of constitutional law. It is this:

If a person who at the time is not under indictment appoints a president for the United States, does the appointment stand?

SCHOOLS MUST NOT BE "MUSCLE-BOUND"

Can a physician, or a school, specialize in one branch without some neglect of the others?

The modern tendency of athletics to run away with schools is manifest in the average school; in schools that carry a department for training athletic trainers the tendency ranges out of bounds.

Athletics, as distinguished from straight physical development training, serve the publicity end of school promotion. Athletic achievement and renown appeal to prospective students, and where enrollment is made the first aim these things are held to count for much.

However, school attendance based upon athletics, or upon any consideration other than school efficiency, can not be maintained. Scholarship is an end to which other phases of school life and activity are but incidental. And by scholarship we do not mean "credits"—we mean learning and the feeling of knowledge that goes into character.

The school that is handicapped with a trainers' training school should pray Heaven for the wisdom to stand upon fundamentals, to keep the exact proportions and to maintain the vision of correct perspective.

"LASTLY, WITH THINE OWN SELF BE TRUE"

The conversion of the administration to a vigorous naval policy goes on slowly, but it does show a kind of halting and confused progress. * * * It was well known that our own slackness and the energy of other powers had placed the American navy infinitely below the German in battle power and probably below the French and Japanese navies also. * * * Yet Mr. Daniels, far from seeking the assistance of private manufacturers, has deliberately estranged them, rejected their co-operation, and cast reflections on their honesty and patriotism.—Collier's Weekly.

Of course it would be far less reprehensible to cast reflections upon the honesty and patriotism of the president.

And of course this is all by way of getting ready to get ready to launch T. R., and does it occur to Collier's that in his own administration the colonel did not make even "halting and confused progress" toward a "vigorous naval policy"? On this subject of "preparedness" it seems sufficient to say that before Wilson there were twenty years of republican administration.

Does it occur to Collier's that republican administration spent on our navy considerably more than Germany spent on her navy "of high battle power"? Does it appear that these same contractors are responsible? Is it important that these contractors were "estranged" because, after charging too much for armor plate for years, they threatened to jump the price if the government dared make a beginning of doing its own armoring? Collier's need not worry lest, in case of need, we shall lose the facilities of the contractors. The United States is big enough to tell a few grafters "where to head in" without fear of being betrayed to a foreign foe in consequence. These foundries and shipyards will be commandeered if we require them.

GIVE US THE OLD GODS AND MEN!

No matter whether Shakespeare was, or whether we just made him, his is a great and influential personality. In our early individual childhood they destroyed our Santa Claus; in the mid-day of civilization they attack our Shakespeare; e'er comes the evening of knowledge they will seek to "scrap" our God. It may be correct to take down "Truth" and put up "Mythology", but where ignorance is inspiration leave us to the worship of our Delusions!

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Didn't Want Her

At a certain military hospital a dear old lady, who spent much time visiting the wounded, would never see that the Tommies objected to her fussing around, and none of the staff had a heart to enlighten her ignorance.

"I didn't know you took Russian soldiers here as well as British," she said to the secretary one day, after the arrival of a fresh batch of military patients.

"Russian? We don't," replied the official. "What do you mean? Surely you've made a mistake."

"Oh, no; there is at least one of them Russian," insisted the old lady. "He told me his name."

"Did he?"

"Yes; I was going round asking them about their wounds and what their names were, and this one replied, 'Obuzzoff'."—Pearson's Weekly.

Proof Enough

A citizen was standing on a street corner looking a bit depressed, when a friend sauntered along.

"What seems to be trouble, old man?" solicitously queried the latter, extending the sympathetic hand.

"You are a sight like sad scenery," "I have just had something of a jolt," answered the sad one. "I was bequeathed a silver service as the solid thing a few weeks ago, and now I know that it is only plated ware."

"Sorry to hear that, old fellow," returned the friend. "But you may be mistaken."

"Oh, no, I'm not," was the mournful rejoinder of the sad one. "The service was on the sideboard the other night when burglars broke in, but they never touched it."

Quite Complimentary

"We have been married twelve years," said an neiress sentimentally to her husband, "and not once have I missed baking you, with my own hands, a birthday cake, have I, dear?"

"No, my darling," the husband answered tenderly. "O, my darling Hildegarde, and I look back on those cakes as milestones in my life."

A Beneficent Influence

"Why do you keep pestering me to go and have some more pictures taken?" inquired Mr. Growcher.

"Because," replied his wife, "the photographer is the only person I know of who can get you to make an effort to smile and look natural."—Washington Star.

Certainly

Nipp—The vermiform appendix seems to be one thing in the world that is absolutely useless.

Puck—Useless? Why, it has kept thousands of doctors from starving to death.

Not to be Scared

"Say," said the landlord to the tenant, who was two months shy with his rent, "when am I going to see the color of your money?"

"Can't say," replied the party of the second part. "The color just now is an invisible green."—Indianapolis Star.

(By Nilsab)

LUZON
This is the greatest of the Philippines, the island empire which we are now about to abandon. Luzon alone has an area of 40,000 square miles, which makes it larger than many states of the union. It is the home of the Igorots, wildest and most interesting of the Philippine tribes.

Civilization has barely touched the coast of Luzon. Candion is a typical town of the coastal country with its great church, its Spanish stores, and its wide streets, lined with little native houses set each in its own banana grove. You go inland on horseback over a narrow trail. Twenty miles from the coast, a great mountain range rises sheer before you. Beyond this is the wilderness and the home of Igorots.

The Lepanto Igorote are a half civilized tribe, who build thatched houses and cultivate rice by an elaborate system of irrigation. Wherever a hillside is found with a favorable soil, stone walls are built to retain the water, which is brought in little ditches. In the course of generations a whole mountain will be elaborately terraced with rice fields.

Farther back in the hills live the head-hunting Igorots, a much larger, stronger and handsomer people, who still make a practice of collecting the heads of their enemies. These people are called the Bontocs and are the terror of the peaceful Lepantos, who never go into the country of the head-hunters if they can help it.

When the Americans came to Luzon, head-hunting was the principal occupation of these natives. Nearly all of the towns were at war with one another. The American officials, by infinite patience and much giving of gifts have settled many of these feuds and converted erstwhile head-hunters into peaceful farmers. It is this slow work of many years which will be all undone if the Philippines are set adrift.

Our small saint ignored his query. "Papa, maybe they come fo' to dig pirates' treasure?"

I laughed then. Virgil relented to a smile. Clell turned to me most good-humoredly. "Doctor Dick, that would be best of all!"

Laure did not relish our taking of it. "Why, we got mo' pirate hide-ups in our reefs than most anybody! Some-a-time I let you dig one."

"Thank you," retorted Clell gravely, "just show me!"

The tree-frog was yelling again. In that sweet noon silence it was terrific. Laure clasped her hands and the disturber keyed lower. But when the talk resumed he yelled the louder.

"Dat little tree-hop—" said Papa Prosper, and began to part the honey-suckle masses. He found the tree-frog and threw him gently off the gallie. "Now, it'll take him an hour to get back in ou' cistern and we can talk a while, m'sieu."

But we couldn't. The ambitious tree-hop was back behind the gallie rail in half the time and resuming his discords. Papa scolded and hurled him again into watery exile under the gallie posts. Virgil arose and paced the sto'. I saw his eyes go out across the pathless salt marsh past the blue wall of the cypress forests.

"This old cuss and his tree-frawg! For six years I been comin' here to pass the time of day. Papa and his tree-frawg and his pig in the barrel hoop—and Laure; and out there, Doctor Dick, my dredge is goin' to junk, and the lilies are fillin' the ditches I dug, and the sweet land is getting saltier year by year. And up nawth Driscoll and his crowd hold off that money and tell me to lay up—till we win and the bonds are sold." Always he came back to the matter; down in his soul he knew he was edging close to failure at last; he had thrown the last dice for our fortunes. And Laure of the isle, refusing his compromise, three years ago, and insisting on the battle which the New Orleans lawyers had made, had brought him to the breaking point.

She suddenly, it appeared, discovered a new means to ruffle him. Watching her mobile and tender mouth, I saw it tighten with demure guile. Perhaps she guessed some hidden issue between them; at any rate, a sparkle came to her eyes as she turned on my stubborn young friend from the city, and struck her small brown hands together. "My honey bees! M'sieu, would you see my honey bees?"

"I would that very thing," Clell sat up straighter. "Honey bees—or pirates—or—anything. Made-moiselle Laure, that is of your little isle. A wonderful little isle, and I—I'm sorry!"

She looked at him with rare attentiveness. And under her lashes to the other man, who could never tell her he was sorry. Then she clasped her hands with a sheer joy it seemed. "And my little gown that came from Paris? Ah, m'sieu, you neve' thought that? One time I went to the opera in N'Awlyins—oh, very fine it was! I stayed at my grand-aunt's, Madam Beauvais' on the Esplanade, and went to a ball of Coom's. Oh, that was very fine, too! Madam Beauvais said to Papa Prosper: 'You must mortgage some land so Laure can have a gown from Paris—what you think of that, m'sieu?' Ah, and then back to Isle Bonne I came like Cinderella!"

We looked after them, Clell laughing as they discussed gowns and the eccentricities of tree-frawgs. Virgil's old wistfulness came: "That boy—he can't make me hate him—after all."

Papa Prosper offered more coffee and sighed over his tree-hop. "Dat frawg, m'sieu, is crazy fo' conversation. Wan time I held cou't, and fo' times I told my constable to chase dat frawg off my rain barrel."

"You—a justice?"

Papa stirred his coffee. "Fo' times I been elected, m'sieu. I neve' yet got up to the river to qualify, but they keep on electin' me. Wan time I had a marryin'. A Manilaman from Grand Lake and a Chino lady from Bassa Bassa camp. Dat lady she say: 'Papa, huccome yo' marry us w'en yo' no got no papah fo' justice?' So to please dat lady I got out my seed catalogue. Dat Manilaman say: 'Yo' sho' dis marryin' stick on dat seed book?' I say: 'Con'se she stick—you go home and see if she not stick.' M'sieu, she stuck fine—dat lady got six babies now, and five shares in wan shrimp seine."

We passed a sunlit day. To the landing of my friend Prosper came all the lake and bayou folk, shrimp skiffs, trade boats, pirogues, derrick houseboats from the grataria river to the North—from Barataria to Butte La Rose, from Isle Grande to Whisky Bay—from the orange groves of the lower coast to the sugar plantations of Terrebonne—the wanderers came to throw a head-line to the wharf, "holer out" the justice and stay, some ten minutes to drip coffee; some five years to catch the crabs and muskrat. Papa sat on his gallie and welcomed—and waved them amiably on. Of course the Yankees—well, one never could tell about Yankees. They were an uncertain lot, forever diving off in the deep swamp with blue-prints, and unloading machinery on their forlorn

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND
- 60 DAISY DEAN -

Vola Smith, winner of a dozen popularity contests conducted by leading magazines and newspapers, was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1898. From earliest childhood this captivating little actress felt sure that she could win success on the stage. After being graduated from high school, she took a three years' course in dramatic art. The family had moved to New York, and right across the street the Biograph company began to build its new studios. When production of pictures began, little Miss Smith used to hang over the garden gate and watch enviously the actresses entering the great building for their day's work. Her chance came one morning when D. W. Griffith looked out of a window and saw her. She was just the type the great director needed for a picture. With characteristic impulse he rushed downstairs and across the street, looked the astonished girl "in the eye, said "You'll do!" and told her to consider herself engaged. From that day until a fortnight ago when she joined the Universal forces, Vola Smith has been a member of the Biograph company, advancing swiftly from the ingenuous roles to such important parts as "Lorna Doone." The secret of her popularity lies not alone in her beauty and striking personality, but also in her genuine ability to portray emotion.

Climbs to Stardom In Less Than Year

Doris Kenyon, the pretty ingenue, has been before the public less than a year, yet is to be starred in a forthcoming World picture. Miss Kenyon was rehearsing at her music teacher's studio one morning when Victor Herbert arrived. He was struck by the beauty of her tones and immediately engaged her for an important singing part in his opera, "Princess Pat," in which production she made a most favorable impression. Maurice Tourneur, the noted director, was so impressed by her appearance on the stage that he sent his card to her and, after a five-minute talk, engaged her for his stock company. Miss Kenyon is just now appearing with Clara Kimball Young in "The Feast of Life," and is working on a play in which she is to be starred. She is but eighteen years of age, has been studying voice culture for three years, and now earns $200 a week in the movies, with the most glowing prospects imaginable.

When D. W. Griffith's play, "The Birth of a Nation," was shown at the Drury Lane theater, London, not long ago at a special matinee for the benefit of the women war workers' fund, royalty attended. Queen Mary with Queen Alexandra and Princesses Victoria and Mary and the Princes Henry and George were there.

King Baggot and the Imp-Universal company are in Savannah doing a number of scenes for a five-reel production, "Half a Rogue," based on the novel by Harold McGrath.

VERSE and REVERSE

Ballade of Dead Yesterdays
What does he gain who goes a-griev-ing
Over the woes of days gone by?
What is achieved that's worth achiev-ing
If the winning it makes you sigh?
Gloom you may, if you will, defy.
Live for today and the days ahead:
Of your memories sad be shy—
All of the yesterdays are dead.

In the web that the Fates are weav-ing
Threads tangle or warp a-wry.
Dreams delusive and hopes deceiv-ing
Mar the pattern, maybe, but why?
Gaze upon it with woeful eye?
Fret no more for a day that's fled,
Turn to the brighter dawn that's nigh—
All of the yesterdays are dead!

Ne'er was a memory worth retriev-ing
If it shadowed the sun-lit sky.
Who to the creed of cheer is cleav-ing
Lets his sorrows in Limbo lie.
Seek not into the past to pry.
In sunnier ways more blithely tread,
Better the woes that were should die:
All of the yesterdays are dead!

it say about honey—if it marry folks so well, it sho' ought to know about honey." And she glanced up brightly at the tall young Yankee. "If I marry a man he got to know all about honey."

I left them in that swamp garden with the drowning of the bees and the fit of the tangers about them—what had I to do with honey? I got my feet well wet trying to get back to Papa Prosper's gallie, for the passage from the bee garden was along the bottom of an overturned dugout across two broken iron kettles. If you fell off this bridge the kettles were thoughtfully filled with water to receive you. I was sleepy and annoyed. Papa Prosper had already excused himself for his siesta. Virgil sat back against the rail, his sombrero over his eyes. The warmth, the droning bees, the traitorous content of Laure's isle—well, I couldn't keep an eye open longer, and was off, sitting in my chair.

Burlington Grants Demands for Increase from 41½ to 44 Cents per Hour

Burlington railroad machinists on their next semi-monthly payday will see in their envelopes approximately three-dollars or more than they have been accustomed to. The railroad recently granted them a raise of 2½ cents per hour, the raise having gone into effect the first of this month. The raise is from 41½ cents to 44 cents per hour.

The grievance committee of the machinists, after but a short session with road officials in Chicago, gained the acceptance of their proposals, the raise affecting the entire system or upwards of fifty thousand machinists. More than fifty machinists here are affected. The Northwestern road has signed similar increases for its men.

The grievance committee representing Milwaukee road machinists is now working with officials in Chicago with similar action in view. It is the opinion of machinists here, that, inasmuch as two other great systems have met the demands of the men, the Milwaukee will do likewise.

Reception In Honor
Of Father Murphy
Is Notable Event

Intended at its inception as a farewell reception, but turned into a "re-welcome" upon the receipt of information to the effect that he would be retained in the city, a reception in honor of Rev. Ambrose Murphy of St. James Catholic church, was held in the school house last evening under the auspices of the young people of the parish.

The attendance was exceptionally large, those present including not only members of the parish, but friends from all parts of the city. A purse of money was presented to Father Murphy by the young people. Hon. Thomas Morris making the presentation and the reverend gentleman responding in his usual happy way, expressing his appreciation of the kindness and co-operation of his parishioners during the twenty-five years of his stay in the city.

The principal address of the evening was that of Mayor A. A. Bentley, and in the course of his talk he compared Father Murphy as he is known today with the youthful and hopeful young man who came to North La Crosse nearly thirty years ago. "Like many another boy, he came with high hopes, with great purpose, pledged to do a great work," said Mr. Bentley, "and at that time he knew but little in comparison with the present about the sorrows and trials, the joys and pleasures, that go to make up the life of a community; but at the present hour he is rich in experience, he is more fully developed, resulting from a life of activity and service. The love and esteem which are felt for him by his congregation was profoundly illustrated in the past few weeks by the manner in which the parishioners protested against his removal. This interest in Father Murphy extended throughout the city. His services to the city of La Crosse in all his different activities have been appreciated and felt, and La Crosse as a city was pleased to welcome Father Murphy back and congratulate him that among his many other qualifications, he is conspicuous for being able to come back without having gone away.

"It is difficult to express appreciation of worth as found in the work of men of high purpose and we often forget to acknowledge services rendered. Many of us often neglect to appreciate services rendered by those who are dear to us, such as our own parents, brothers and sisters, wives and husbands. If this is true with our families, how much more true it is with reference to the services of public men and those who have the care and work of directing our religious activities. Indifference to our own welfare, indifference to the efforts of others, is a common weakness, but when that service is about to be taken away from us, we rise with fear in our hearts and cling to those who have contributed to our daily enjoyments. It seems almost necessary to shock a city, a community or a church with the idea that a great loss may come to them before they can fully realize the splendid possessions which are theirs. No doubt in this particular case, the fact that the parish nearly lost Father Murphy and his valuable services will result in a renewed interest in the work of St. James parish. The best expression of appreciation is service. Therefore, have a purpose and let it direct you in your support of Father Murphy in the future, and do your share and your part in making his next twenty-five years of service to La Crosse less strenuous, less of sacrifice, more of rest, more of love and appreciation."

Special vocal numbers were rendered by Mrs. Grace McLindon Bartl and Mr. Carl Noelle. Mrs. Bartl gave, in her usual pleasing manner, Hardolot's "Because" and "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," by Tate, and Mr. Noelle sang "The Creole Love Song" and "The Old Refrain."

Refreshments were served by a number of young girls.

Miss Sweet Sixteen Is Going to Graduate

Well, mother if you have racked your brains to distraction to design a dress for your Miss Sweet Sixteen when she stands on the platform with her high school graduating class in June, or if you can't make up your mind what to buy her, here it is. This is made of net and organdie, the skirt having a double flounce effect.

Then there is a crushed taffeta giraffe and a cluster of daisies are notable details.

Let your Miss Sweet Sixteen wear something like this if you haven't a fortune to spend on her. Then she will look as well as the daughter of the First National bank. It may be made for $5.

100 Women Doctors
For The Federated
Clubs' Convention

NEW YORK, May 9.—For the benefit of the 20,000 clubwomen who will attend the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs here May 23 to June 2, one hundred women doctors and as many more nurses are on the emergency staff, under the direction of Dr. Rosalie S. Morton, and they will minister to all the ills a clubwoman is heir to.

Two stations, each under two doctors and a trained nurse, will be open at all hours in the Seventh Regiment Armory. Stations will be maintained continually at the Hotel Astor, official headquarters, and other hotels. Hospital rooms at the armory and the hotels will be part of the equipment.

A good deal of attention will be paid to the subject of dress. All delegates have been advised to dress simply and to avoid extremes. On the convention floor no hats at all will be worn. At one of the evening sessions Miss Jane Fales of Teachers' college, assisted by twenty living models, will show the history of costume.

However, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, president of the federation, advises every woman to wear her best clothes at the convention, and prophesies that even the small town delegate will be up to the minute in style. So the promised simplicity shouldn't be taken too literally.

A Combination

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 9.—"Men know all there is to know about several things. Women know all to be known about many other subjects. Together they know all there is to be known about all subjects," said Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, New York, addressing the Mississippi Valley Suffrage association, opening a three days' session here today. Five hundred women from twenty-two Mississippi valley states are here.

RID YOUR SKIN
OF PIMPLES

Use Poslam and Poslam Soap to Drive Away Unightly Blemishes

Blemishes of an eruptive nature, such as pimples, rashes, etc., are driven away very quickly by Poslam. Its healing work in stubborn and aggravated eczema cases is often remarked as wonderful. In most surface skin disorders Poslam seems to supply precisely the soothing, controlling influence needed. Comfort is immediate; itching stops and as far as suffering is concerned the trouble may usually be forgotten soon after Poslam is applied.

Poslam Soap, containing Poslam, is an aid to health of skin and hair. Try daily one month for toilet and bath.

same lines. It is believed that the action will be taken, for other New Jersey affiliated bodies have already broken from the parent organization. The split is the result of a disagreement of long standing, the local women objecting to the alleged commercialism of the national body. Objection has also been made to the concentration of power in the hands of one woman.

Salary Induces
Choice of Teaching

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 9.—That salary is the attraction that brings nearly half of the women teachers to the normal schools is indicated by a unique report of Dean Lotus Goffman of the department of education of the University of Minnesota. Other motives were that they thought they would like the work, wanted the experience, and thought it would be a stepping stone to something better. Salary is the reason given by 46 per cent of the women who were asked why they selected teaching as a profession. Only 4 per cent of them gave their liking for books and study as the reason. Incidentally, Dean Goffman points out, ten per cent of the men teachers insist their real motive was "easy hours—no manual labor".

New York Girl
Weds War Hero

NEW YORK, May 9.—One of the most prominent weddings of the week is that which takes place this afternoon in the Church of St. Ignace Loyola, when Miss Marie Guillet Durvee, elder daughter of Mrs. Samuel Auchincloss, becomes the bride of Paul de Saint Phalle, a son of Count and Countess Pierre de Saint Phalle of France. The groom has been serving in the French army and was invalided home after receiving severe wounds. He has received medals of honor for his services in France.

Denounces Women Who
Cuddle Dogs, Not Babies

LONDON, May 9.—Denouncing childless women, "befurred and bewelwed," who vuddle pet dogs in war time, Rev. Bernard Vaughan, Catholic author and lecturer, declared in a speech at the Mansion House:

"The cry 'Back to the Land' is not so important as 'Back to the Home'."

"The cradle is empty and the church bench is empty. The church bench is empty because the cradle is empty."

"When I was a boy the birth rate was 37 to 40; today we have dropped to 19.5 per 1,000 population."

"We are a nation travelling to the cemetery. Never was the marriage rate so high; never the birth rate so low; and that at a time when the cry is to replace the men we are losing."

"It is not the men, munitions or money we want. It is the mother we need today and shall need more and more."

When Tobacco Was Money.

At one time slaves were adopted as the unit of value, a man's wealth being reckoned by the number of his slaves. Products of the soil have commonly passed current as money and our ancestors in Maryland and Virginia before the Revolutionary war, and even later, used tobacco as money. They passed laws making tobacco money and paid the salaries of the government officials and collected all taxes in tobacco.

MILITARY SERVICE

DEMOCRATIZES ALL

THE SWISS NATION

No Pull or Social Influence
Will Aid Person in the Army; Ability
Counts

Note.—This is the fifth of a series of five articles by Shepherd dealing with the Swiss system of military training for citizens, in its relation to the possibilities of a similar system in the United States.—Editor.

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERNE, May 9.—"All Swiss owe their country a military service."
These are the first words in the Swiss military rule book.

We haven't any book printed in the United States, available to the masses, that says any such thing.

These words democratize the Swiss
army.

If the United States were to be forced into war, our regiments would be commanded, in the main, by the young men of our rich families. This happened in the Spanish-American war.

Political pull, based on wealth and influence, placed in the hands of almost any rich young man who cared to assume the responsibility, the lives of some hundreds of good average American citizens.

This couldn't happen in the Swiss
army.

When a Swiss soldier goes out to fight, he knows he is under a trained officer, selected by experts and tried.

Just being rich doesn't get you anywhere in the Swiss army. Being rich doesn't keep you out of the army, either. It isn't any training of the Plattsburg camp variety that takes you to the top in the Swiss army. It's brains and ability.

must start in the ranks.

As a man shows special adaptability he is forced to take special examinations for promotion. He cannot refuse a promotion.

The examinations are rigid; the result is that, whether a youth comes from the poorest or the richest, he must be whatever his ability makes him.

The rich man's son may remain a private all his life while the son of the poorest man in the neighborhood
may be his military superior.

Only a democratic army like this,
military men in Europe say, is safe and strong. There is rottenness and fatal weakness in an army where social position and wealth avail.

Banker Salutes Clerk

In Chassio, Switzerland, I saw the clerk in Luigi Corti's grocery store
step out on the sidewalk in his sergeant's uniform, just as the son of the village banker went by in his automobile. The banker's son saluted Luigi's clerk, because the clerk's uniform indicated that Luigi's clerk was a better man, as a soldier, than the banker's son.

And any country that does want to keep alive and whole must have plenty of citizens who can become full fledged soldiers at a moment's notice.

Looking over the armies of Europe, which I have seen, I am led to believe that the American military system is the worst of them all.

It's a dangerous system, with leadership based on many other things than ability.

It is permeated with politics. From this distance and this place, it looks like a papier mache revolver that will make the other fellow shoot but that can't be shot itself.

It isn't the fault of our standing army or of our army men. It's the fault of the American citizen, who doesn't realize that he isn't the straightest shooting, finest muscled best soldier-material in the world.

DESPONDENCY CAUSES SUICIDE

CHICAGO, May 9.—Edward Smith, 57, manager of the Maurice L. Rothchild clothing store, at Minneapolis, committed suicide by shooting him-ency over the threatened loss of his eyesight is believed to be the cause of the act. He came here from Hudson, Wis., where his eyes were being treated.

Are You Envious?

Envy is the weakness of small natures. It is the people with cramped souls who feel that whatever others get in the way of admiration robs them of their due. It is the hardest thing in the world to weed out envy. To get rid of it, outgrow it.

ENGINEERS UNITE TO GIVE SERVICES TO UNITED STATES

neers in the United States either live or have their headquarters here in New York. The headquarters of the national engineering associations—the civil, mechanical, mining and electrical engineers' societies—are also located here. Thirty-five hundred men are enrolled in this city alone for the lectures, readings and conferences on the duties of a military engineer.

Engineers Interested

Like many another of the preparedness movements which are sweeping the country, the project had for its basis the idea of making known a need that would confront the country in case of war. The engineers took up the scheme with an enthusiasm that surprised even the men who conceived it. The lectures which were the first step in the program were delivered under the sanction of General Wood, who himself addressed one of the meetings. General Wood asked for an assurance that at least a hundred men would attend the first meeting. Over 2,000 were present, and it was necessary to turn 700 away from the doors.

The training given the engineers consists in a series of lectures on military engineering problems, the suggestion of useful reading along the same lines, and a series of conferences on the works thus read. Besides this, hundreds of the men are actually drilling, with the intention of attending the next Plattsburg encampment. They would like to have the government arrange for a special encampment for engineers, as the Plattsburg camp comes at a time when most engineers find it impossible to leave their work in the field,
but so far this has proved impracticable. The lectures are delivered by staff officers of the army engineering corps, who manage to find time for the extra work in addition to their regular duties.

In Three Companies

In the short time since the project has been under way seven lectures have been delivered, covering many of the problems that an engineer encounters in the field in time of war. It has proved necessary to give each of these lectures three times over in order to give all the men who want to hear them a chance to attend. As for the drill work, the leaders of the movement are confident that a thousand engineers would turn out in this city alone if an encampment were provided at a time when their regular professional work was not too pressing.

The numbers of the engineers and trained technical men in any big city comes as something of a surprise to anybody who has never investigated the question. The city of New York employs about 4,000 engineers in municipal work. Fifteen hundred municipal engineers work on the subway alone, exclusive of hundreds more employed by private contractors. As an instance of what a reserve corps of engineers could do in time of war, the vital question of the defence of New York in case of invasion arises as a pertinent example. The defences are of course already elaborately planned, on paper, covering a line more than a hundred miles long. In an emergency, civilian engineers who had taken the necessary training and study such as the engineers of New York are giving themselves today, could take over those plans from the army engineering corps and see that they were carried out, leaving the regular army men free to go with the troops.

Spontaneous Work

It is hard to define exactly the status of the engineers' preparedness movement here in New York. It is intimately connected with the big national engineering societies, so far as the fact goes that many of the officers and prominent men of these societies are taking an active part,
but there is no formal connection whatever. Many of the engineers who have taken up the new work are not members of the societies. As the men behind the movement put it themselves, the work was started by a self-constituted committee with the purpose of disseminating a knowledge of military engineering among civilian engineers, and also with the object of advertising the need for engineering preparedness. The idea is finding favor with technical men throughout the nation. The workers are bound together by a common sentiment and desire rather than by a formal organization.

There is a strong sentiment among them in favor of national legislation for forming an engineering reserve corps. A committee of four has been appointed to take the matter up,
and secure legislation of it possible.
The engineers believe that government recognition would be a big help,
and do a real service to the country.
At present they are doing most of their work by co-operating informally with the regular army and the National Guard.

Want Separate Camp

Army officers are taking time to deliver the lectures in addition to their regular work; the men who drill are using National Guard armories and rifles, and officers of the Guard are volunteering their services as drill-masters. The men furnish their own uniforms. For regular encampment, their only chance is Plattsburg, which comes at an inconvenient time for the average engineer. Hence they feel that their usefulness would be greatly increased by government recognition which would put them on an independent footing, give them guns and tents, and allow certain officers to devote all their time to the special training of these men who are already technically trained.

The local organization is attracting a good deal of interest, and the officers get a stream of defence suggestions from people who have worked out the problem to their own satisfaction. All the old ideas have crop-feature of the engineers' society—

the feature that some of the private feature is its hard-headed practical-

REPORT DROP IN YEAR'S WHEAT CROP

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The bureau of crop estimates has reported wheat to be harvested on May 1 was about 33,020,000 acres, or 11.4 per cent; 4,236,000 acres less than the acreage planted last fall and 18.4 per cent. 7,433,000 acres less than the acreage harvested last year, namely 40,453,000 acres.

The average condition of winter wheat was $2.4 compared with 78.3
on April 1, and 92.9 on May 1 a year ago.

A yield of 15.1 bushels is estimated.

Pessimism was expressed in a statement of the bureau of crop estimates this afternoon regarding the winter wheat crop. Acreage abandonment was heavy, the statement said
—heaviest in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois,
Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Mis-

Ohio and Iowa to 3 per cent in Illinois.

HOUND'S NOSE NOT ENOUGH TO HOLD
MAN FOR ROBBERY

SPARTA, Wis., May 9.—(Special.)—A bloodhound's nose is not sufficient evidence to warrant holding a man for burglary, Judge Ran A. Richards decided this morning when Claude Calkins of Tomah was arraigned in county court, charged with robbery of the Carl Kohl home in Tomah.

Bloodhounds put on the trail following the Kohl burglary went to the home of Calkins. He was arrested and charged with the robbery. Calkins pleaded not guilty and steadily denied any connection with the burglary.

Unless other evidence could be produced than that of the hounds, Judge Richards said, he could not bind Calkins over.

German submarine operations will be subjected to the closest scrutiny by American consular agents for the remainder of the war, it was learned here today, regardless of whether or not Americans are on board. An investigation will be made into the sinking Sunday of the British four masted Gelgate by a submarine. Fourteen of the Gelgate's crew are missing and are believed to have perished.

QUEENSTOWN, May 9.—American Consul Frost will leave for Bantry Bay, Ireland, within a few hours to learn whether the liner Cymric was warned by the German submarine that torpedoed her, whether she was armed and whether she attempted to escape. He will interview the Cymric's officers.

EFFECT OF INCIDENT UNKNOWN

If Americans Were Aboard Disavowal of Attack and Reparation Would Be Expected

BY ROBERT J. BENDER

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, May 9.—With President Wilson's acceptance of Germany's now altered policy of submarine warfare only today received in Berlin, that new policy may already have been put to the test by a submarine commander. The torpedoing of the liner Cymric, if it was without warning, apparently violates the very orders against attacking merchantmen which the German imperial government has declared are in effect.

The fact that no Americans were aboard, Washington officials said today, does not enter into the case. Germany has declared her orders now to submarine commanders are intended to confine the operation of the war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents. The Cymric, apparently, was not of the fighting forces.

What effect the Cymric incident may have is problematical. If Americans were aboard, quick disavowal of the attack and proper reparation would be expected. The United States government has made the maintenance of friendly relations with Germany contingent on abandonment of such attacks as that reported yesterday afternoon. Germany has reported issuance of orders to prevent such attacks. It is possible the Cymric was the victim of a submarine whose commander has not yet received the new orders.

The status of the German-American relations today following the dispatch yesterday afternoon of the president's note to Berlin is briefly:

If Germany is unwilling to abide by international law in her submarine warfare except in return for successful United States negotiations with Great Britain, she must say so definitely.

By accepting the president's note with its clear declaration that England's policies shall not enter into the settlement of the issue, Germany can bring the matter to an end. Pending word from Berlin, the president assumes this is Germany's intent regardless of qualifying phrases in her last note.

Full acceptance is anticipated by the administration. Less than that officials say would be likely to mean the long threatened break with Germany.

BERLIN, May 9.—German troops have stormed and captured several French trenches south of Haucourt in the region of Hill 304, the war office announced this afternoon. All French attempts to recapture German positions on Hill 304 have been repulsed.

On the northeast front of Verdun, French attacks in the region of Thiaumont also failed. Prisoners taken by the Germans on that sector now number 234. The Germans also took nine machine guns.

PARIS, May 9.—A violent German attack on Hill 304 at 3 o'clock this morning was completely repulsed, the war office announced today.

On the east bank of the Meuse, northeast of Verdun, French counterattacks during the night; in the region northwest of Thiaumont, threw the Germans from the few points in the French first line trenches they still held, as the result of Sunday's heavy attack against the French front.

The German attack on Hill 304 made early today followed a night of heavy bombardment. The Germans played shells upon the French defensive positions on the hill until nearly dawn. French curtain fire brought the charge to an immediate halt.

On the east bank of the Meuse, the Germans made no attempt at a vigorous offensive, contenting themselves with bombarding violently the Douaumont-Vaux front. The raid by which the French recaptured a lost ground was the only important infantry action on this side of the river.

French troops carried a German post near Boland, in the Argonne, last night, killing all the occupants. The crown prince has lost 10,000 in dead and wounded since he renewed his drive against Verdun with a heavy thrust from the northwest early Friday, French military men estimated today.

German prisoners confirmed the belief of French officials that the present violent attacks northwest of Verdun constitute the beginning of a fourth great assault against the fortress. They declared they were ordered to take the dominant positions on Hill 304 and Dead Man's Hill, guarding Verdun from the north, at all costs.

The force starting from Marathon was regarded as pitifully small for such a campaign. Funston, however, was unable to reinforce the battalion now heading south.

Is Bad Country

"We have no more men to send," he said, despairingly. "The country into which the men must penetrate is the most difficult in northern Mexico. Little water or forage is to be had enroute and the chances of catching the bandits under the handicap were believed small. The country along both sides of the border has long been the refuge of desperate characters from both Mexico and the United States.

"The Big Bend country has been to the bad man of Texas and northern Mexico what the Bad Lands of the north were to the desperadoes years ago."

No Fear Held For Pershing
Funston felt secure regarding Pershing's expedition. He believes they will be able to take care of themselves. Their supplies are ample and their line of communication has been developed to a high point of efficiency. Both Scott and Obregon submitted long reports to their governments following last night's meeting.

Carranza, War Minister Obregon says, has 35,000 men in strategic positions in northern Mexico. No secret was made of the fact that conditions today are more threatening than at any other time since the negotiations began.

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., May 9.—Twenty members of the crew of the steamer S. R. Kirby are believed to have perished in the sinking of that vessel last night after a desperate twelve hour fight against a sixty mile gale sweeping Lake Superior. The Kirby went to the bottom off Eagle harbor.

Details of the disaster were brought to the Soo today by the steamer Joseph Block. The Block had succeeded in rescuing one member of the Kirby's crew.

Seven members of the crew of the barge, Hartwell, which was in tow of the Kirby, are believed safe. The barge is reported to have been picked up by the steamer Berry and taken to shelter behind Keweenaw point.

The S. C. Kirby, built in 1890 and owned by L. C. Waldo, is registered from Detroit. It displaces 2,348 tons and is 300 feet long. It was built of steel and wood.

Says Boilers Gave
DULUTH, Minn., May 9.—The steamer S. R. Kirby's boilers blew up when she put on high steam to battle a terrific sixty mile gale, according to the second mate, who arrived here today.

The mate, who was picked up by the steamer Berwind, upbound, claimed that the Kirby carried a crew of 22 and that besides himself, one other of the crew was picked up by the steamer Joseph Block, downbound. The Berwind tried to save another, but he was so exhausted that he slipped from a raft and was lost before the Berwind reached him.

When the Kirby's boilers exploded, she cut loose the barge Hartwell, in tow. The mate claimed to know definitely that the Hartwell's crew of seven, with Captain Oliver Pitts and Engineer Sylvester Smith of the Hartwell, took to a lifeboat which was swamped and that the nine were lost. The steamer Utley, he claimed, later picked up the abandoned barge Hartwell.

The Kirby and Hartwell were both from Ashland, Wis., where the Kirby had been loaded with ore.

Adjutant General Hutchings, following receipt of the president's order, disbanded the infantry officers' training camp, directing the men to go to their homes and hold themselves in readiness for service.

AMERICAN CAPTIVES
OVERPOWER GUARDS
AND CROSS BORDER

MARATHON, Texas, May 9.—The story of how seven Americans, captured by the Glen Springs raiders, overpowered their guards in the desert and brought three of the Mexican bandits back to the United States was told this afternoon on the arrival of the Americans in Marathon.

The Americans turned their prisoners over to Sheriff Walton and Captain Fox of the Texas Rangers near Tramway Crossing and arrived here on horses borrowed from rangers.

Halter and Hasbrouck were captured Saturday at Boquillas, Mexico, where they were employed with a mine company. They were taken to Tramway Crossing, where they found Butler, Powers and three other men, truck drivers, at a nearby mine, held prisoners.

After being held prisoner for more than thirty-six hours, the Americans, employees of the International Mining company at Porto Rico de Boquillas, grappled with their guards disarmed them and escorted them to Glenn Springs.

MILITIA OF THREE STATES IS CALLED REGULARS RUSHED

al regiments of regular infantry have been directed to proceed to the border and such further arrangements will be made as are necessary for the complete security of the people of the United States against raids of this character.

In addition to the militia, the following infantry was ordered to the border:

Thirtieth, Plattsburgh, N. Y.

Third, Madison Barracks, Oswego, N. Y.

Twenty-first, Vancouver, Wash.

Fourteenth, Fort Lawton, Wash.

The militia of the three states drawn upon numbers about four thousand men.

Secretary Baker declined to say whether the new orders were the result of General Scott's message concerning the Obregon conference.

Baker declared it was based on recommendations from Scott and Funston as a result of the Big Bend raid. He would neither affirm nor deny that Obregon had demanded withdrawal of troops under penalty of a clash between American and Carranzista forces.

Message Comes Early

Highly important developments became probable early today, following the receipt of a long code message from Generals Scott and Funston.

The message was regarded as especially significant in view of border reports that General Obregon had served notice on Scott and Funston that the further presence of the Villa pursuers in Mexico would mean an attack on them by Carranza troops.

The message was in confidential code and intended only for the secretary of war or the acting chief of staff.

Earlier in the night, Secretary Baker had conferred with President Wilson at the White house and, it was said, transmitted General Funston's recommendations for a new disposition of forces along the border to cope with the situation arising from raids in the Big Bend country.

The general feeling here today was that Mexican affairs had taken a sudden unexpected turn for the worse.

Asked if the situation is serious, he replied gravely:

"I can't say anything one way or the other."

Must Patrol Canadian Border

By drawing the two regiments from Plattsburgh and Madison barracks, the war department has made it necessary to draw upon other sources for sufficient troops to patrol points along the Canadian border. Cavalry will be sent to Plattsburgh from Fort Ethan Allen and General Wood, it is declared, will send enough troops, probably drawing on coast artillery, to put a sufficient force at Madison Barracks.

STENOGRAPHERS RAVE

COME FOR EXECUTION

Instead of shrieking flight, the stenographers employed in the court house vied with each other for an opportunity to make much of four live wolves that came into the county building this morning. There were four of the gray poultry thieves—about the size of kittens. Their eyes were not yet opened.

"Dear" and "cute" were only a few of the adjectives showered upon the sprawling cubs as they crept whining over the floor of the county clerk's office, just like any friendly puppies. They were said to be about seven days old.

The quartet was found by William McCune, professional wolf-hunter of Winona, Minn. He said he found the den with the cubs on French Island. The four bring McCune's total wolf-catch since last autumn to just ninety.

The cubs were killed by their captor later in the day and their scalps turned over to the county clerk. McCune received $32 bounty.

Says Mexico of
Glenn Springs Raid

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The raid on Glenn Springs, Texas, which resulted in the death of three troopers and one civilian, was organized in the United States, Mexican Ambassador Arredondo charged in a conference with Secretary Lansing today.

The Carranza representative named I. Villareal, formerly a Villista general, as the principal agitator responsible for border raids and plots.

Arredondo said he had no indication of any further request by Obregon or any Mexican official that the United States troops be withdrawn. All he knew, he said, was that Obregon and General Scott are still conferring.

Arredondo urged a larger body of American troops be sent to the American side of the line to guard the territory and to watch American conspirators.

Just before the Glenn Springs raid, Villareal endeavored to stir up a mutiny among Carranza troops at Laredo, Mexico, said Arredondo. Failing in this he picked out a point on the border guarded by only nine American troopers and organized an attack against it, charged Arredondo.

Had it not been for American arms, and information from American sources, he said the raid at Glenn Springs could not have been successful. He declared he feared further raids of the same sort would be organized by the same people, if utmost vigilance is not observed. These raids, he declared, have the purpose of embroiling Carranza with the United States.

On the Mexican side of the river, opposite Glen Springs, there is no settlement within 100 miles capable of furnishing shelter or supplies to such a force as the 300 armed men which raided Glenn Springs, Arredondo declared.

Two other towns are now selected as objects of raids by Villareal forces, Arredondo told Secretary Lansing. He said that for twenty years Villareal had been a member of the Mexican I. W. W. and other agitative organizations.

Several hundred people sat in the dark for forty minutes last night in the Casino and Majestic theaters when the movie actors made a sudden and unscheduled exit. The direct current circuit of the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company was disabled by a fire on a pole in the rear of Central fire station. Only power circuits were affected, it was said today.

The Majestic theater house-lights are also wired to the direct current circuit, and with the exception of the lobby the house was dark. Candles were hurriedly produced for the orchestra, and music by the old fashioned flicker entertained the patrons until the current was switched on again.

DEFOWE HAS WORST OF IT

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 9.—Billy Defowe of Minneapolis and Eddie Campi, formerly of Frisco, but now of this city, boxed six rounds to a draw in the final attraction of the National A. C. bill tonight. Campi was by far the cleverer of the two and held the rugged Defowe helpless in the clinches, and adroitly ducked the long wicked swings of the slugging westerner.

CLEVELAND WINS EIGHTH STRAIGHT TIGERS THE GOAT

Club of Smith Helps to Down Detroit; Johnson Beaten by Mack Youngster

CLEVELAND, May 9.—Elmer Smith had a great day at bat yesterday, the Indians defeating the Tigers 3 to 1 as a result. It was the Redskins' eighth consecutive victory. Smith's first drive was a double that hit the right field screen. His second hit was a single, and he made the circuit on a sacrifice, an out and Wamby's single. In the eighth Smith came up with two down and two on bases. He again doubled to right, scoring both men. Score: R H E Detroit . . . 001000000—1 7 0 Cleveland . . . 00000012*—3 7 0 Batteries: Dubuc and Stange; Bagby and O'Neil.

Macks 4; Senators 2
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 9.—Connie Mack's youngster, Myers, defeated Walter Johnson on Monday, 4 to 2. The big Swede was not in good form and was hit hard by the Athletics and also received poor support from his teammates. Score: R H E Philadelphia . . . 10002001*—4 12 1 Batteries: Johnson, Boehling and Almsmith, Henry; Myers and Schang.
Yanks 4; Red Sox 0
NEW YORK, May 9.—Mogridge held the Red Sox to three hits yesterday the Yanks winning, 4 to 0. Maisel's double and Baker's single gave the Yankees a run in the first and they scored again in the fourth on singles by Magee and Baker and a sacrifice. McHale relieved Gregg in the seventh and was hit for two runs in the ninth. Score: R H E New York . . . 100100002—4 8 0 Boston . . . 000000000—0 3 3 Batteries: Mogridge and Alexander; Gregg, McHale and Agnew.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's homers: Williams, Cubs, off Cooper, Pirates; Barber, Washington, off Myers, Athletics; Fitzgerald, Braves, off Palmero, Giants.

The Cubs got revenge on Max Carey for the homer he made Sunday. McConnell whiffed the Pirate Gardner four times in the first game. The Cubs split fifty-fifty in a double bill with the Pirates. Cy Williams' long slam in the first game was the only thing that saved the Tinkerites from losing both games. Eight straight for the Indians. Ty Cobb and the Tigers cannot stop 'em now.

The world's champions could get only three measly hits off Mogridge of the Yanks.

A stiff drubbing was handed Walter Johnson. The Athletics drove the star twirler from the slab in the eighth and won from the senators, 4 to 2.

The White Sox won an exhibition game at Erie, Pa., 19 to 3. Twelve doubles were made.

Walter Johnson was not the only fallen star. The Dodgers drove on the Phils was too much for Alexander who succumbed to a 2 to 6 defeat.

Ping Bodie, former hard hitting White Sox outfielder, is leading the Pacific Coast league with a batting average of .349.

KILBANE IS GENEROUS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 9.—Johnny Kilbane pulled out of town today with a technical knockout to his credit. In the fifth round of his bout last night with Willie Jackson, of New York, when he had the Gothamite reeling in a daze, the champion refused to administer the sleep producer.

INDIANS KEEP UP PACE AND PERCH AT LEAGUE'S TOP

Team Predicted as Good Mates for Athletics Show Heels to the Crowd in American

NEW YORK, May 9.—Making up in pep what they lack in batting and fielding the lowly Cleveland Indians came up from the ruck with a rush, during last week's play and winning six consecutive games, led their league Monday by the comfortable margin of a game and one-half.

If the old legend that twenty games tell the tale of the class of the club's be true, what then? For the dopesters selected the Indians to keep the Athletics company at the bottom of the list. But there is an alibi. Cleveland's place was selected before the mighty Speaker joined the club.

The records show the Indians sixth in both club batting and club fielding with averages of .235 and .964. In the National, the outstanding feature of the past week was not the change of the clubs, but the start of Christy Mathewson, the once peerless "Big Six."

When Matty took the rubber against the Braves the crowd at the Polo grounds held its breath. The second ball he pitched was knocked almost out of the grounds for a three bagger. That told the tale and the Boston sluggers kept touching him up, gathering a total of fourteen hits. Matty's control was there and the fade-away was working, but he was shy of speed. It was Matty's seventeenth year's start in big company, his first being in 1900. Walter Johnson was then but 11 years old.

One week ago the first four in the National lined up: Philadelphia, Chicago, Brooklyn, and Boston. Yesterday it is Brooklyn, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia.

In the second division Cincinnati took fifth place from St. Louis. Pittsburg continues comfortably in seventh and the Giants now have to burrow to find room.

The Red Sox and Detroit tied for first a week ago each lost four and won but one and are now tied for fourth in the American. New York winning three and losing three, held on to third place and Clark Grit-

ONE ELIMINATED FROM PLAYOFF IN "Y" CUE PLAYOFF

Jack Dahlgren, champion of class A of the Y. M. C. A. handicap billiard tournament, has been eliminated in the playoff between the champions of classes A, B and C, having been defeated by Schewe, class B champ, 58 to 82, Dahlgren playing at 94.

Schewe is conceded the association handicap champion, following his victory over Tracy Johnson, class C champ, 58 to 37. Johnson plays at 45. Johnson has two games to play with Dahlgren and Schewe must play one more with Dahlgren. Should Johnson win his remaining games and Schewe lose his one remaining game the men would be tied for the lead at four games won and two lost.

FAMOUS COLONEL DOES RASH DEED AND BULLET SNUFFS OUT EXISTANCE

BY H. D. JACOBS

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ADVANCED BASE OF THE AMERICAN EXPEDITION, PROVIDENCIA, Mex., April 28, by courier to

Columbus, N. M., May 9.—Manuel

Baca, famed Villista colonel, is dead

again. His demise "took" this time, however, and he may be rated as permanently, no doubt about it—

dead—American officers of Colonel Dodd's command officially pronounced him so and the old story of a woman—was told in connection with his end.

Baca rode into Santo Tomas on April 23, a fugitive seeking a hiding place, after Dodd's men had cut his command to shreds in the fight at Tomachic.

Manuel Baca must take a woman into hiding with him and he made a mistake in picking the woman.

The pretty daughter of Leandro Alvarez caught his eye. He seized her arm; she screamed. Alvarez rushed to the door with a rifle, firing twice as he ran and Baca fell dead.

Alvarez received twenty pesos from the government as an advance on the reward for Baca's death.

AUTOMOBILE FILMS TO BE SEEN HERE

American manufacturing methods have probably reached their highest development of efficiency in the huge factories where automobiles are made.

For this reason, the views depicting the construction of automobiles at the immense plant of the Willys Overland company, Toledo, Ohio, the largest automobile factory in the world, shown in connection with Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival, at the La Crosse Theater on May 13 and 14, form a most interesting feature of the program.

The pictures show the various car parts in process of manufacture and the employment of some of the most modern factory machinery in use, ending in the department where the final assembly is made on traveling chain belts.

This picture, starting with the bare skeleton of a car frame, that grows as it moves into a finished automobile, is probably the best exposition of modern factory efficiency that it would be possible to secure.

The Howe pictures include also a trip through Glacier National park, Montana, and various other features of exceptional interest.

MISS TALIAFERRO PLAYS STRONG PART

"Her Great Price," a Metro

wonderplay in five gripping parts, with Mabel Taliaferro, the pretty and charming young star, in the stellar role, will be the feature attraction at the Casino today and the Strand tomorrow.

Miss Taliaferro is supported by an exceptionally strong cast. The story itself is one of the most fascinating and surprising narratives ever shown on the screen. Until the final scenes are shown the spectators will not have the faintest idea of the outcome. It has a truly O. Henry finish, and will prove a distinct innovation. Edwin Carewe, who directed "Destiny, or The Soul of a Woman" with Emily Stevens in the stellar role; and Ethel Barrymore in "The Final Judgment", two Metro screen masterpieces, is responsible for the finished direction of "Her Great Price."

TAMING OF SHREW PROPER VEHICLE FOR AMATEUR CAST

The senior class of the La Crosse normal has cast its vote in favor of the national enthusiasm to pay a tercentenary tribute to the beloved Bard of Avon. As a result "The Taming of Shrew" is to be presented on next Thursday evening.

Perhaps no drama of Shakespeare affords the amateur a better opportunity to adapt his fantastical extravagance of dramatic art to more apt advantage. The incessant persecutions of poor Katherine under the lash of Petruchio's finely studied freaks of self-will call forth a ludicrous, yet pitiable, situation that the amateur not only likes but feels.

The nonchalance of Sly the tinker, who, upon waking from a drunken brawl, finds himself dubbed a lord and the object of the play within a play, lends a farcical balance to the feigned seriousness of Petruchio that turns fun into art.

The acting of the play is quickened by the rapid, successive incidents of the taming; the supper scene wherein the platters of appetizing food are snatched from under the eyes of the wifely Katherine and hurled at the servants; the wrangling disputation of terms that ends in Katherine declaring that the moon is the sun—to meet the whim of Petruchio.

If Too Fat Get More Fresh Air

BE MODERATE IN YOUR DIET AND REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT. TAKE OIL OF KOREN.

Lack of fresh air it is said weakens the oxygen carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off a serious case of obesity may result.

When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden or unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from City Book and Drug Store, 500 Main street, Columbian Pharmacy, 123 South Fourth street, a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and even a few days treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight.

LOCKJAW KILLS M'GREGOR BOY

Gerald Minney Steps on a Rusty Nail While Working and Violent Death Follows

M'GREGOR, Iowa, May 9.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary Sibbitt of Wichita, Kansas, national lecturer for the W. C. T. U. was in this vicinity on Thursday and Friday speaking on equal suffrage. She gave talks at Monona, North McGregor, McGregor and in one of the rural school houses, near town. The McGregor Equal Suffrage league has raised nearly $200 which will be expended for the most part in holding meetings in the rural districts and canvassing the farmer vote between now and June 5th. An Equal Suffrage tea will be held at the home of Mrs. Connert next Thursday afternoon. A dime collection will be taken for the cause and a suffrage program given. All the women in McGregor and the surrounding country are invited.

Lockjaw Kills Boy

Gerald Minney, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Minney, is dead as the result of stepping on a nail while engaged in labor. The foot was considerably inflamed for a day or two after the accident. The inflammation disappeared and the wound seemed to be nearly well. Friday lockjaw developed and the young man died in convulsions eighteen hours later.

Members of the Woman's Tourist club gave an entertainment in the Methodist church parlors last evening to raise money for the fund they are preparing to use in cleaning up and beautifying the town. Vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Nagley and Miss Frances Donovan, an instrumental selection by Miss Phillips and a reading by Mrs. E. Rice. Following William Dean Howells' farce, "The Mouse Trap", was given by the following women: Mesdames M. Schall, George Bliss, Ben Kinsley, A. Clemens, B. Olson, D. Benjamin and Karl Bickel.

DEAD RAIDER A CARRANZISTA?

De Facto Commission Said
to Have Been Found

Mexican

MARATHON, Texas, May 9.—American troops of the Fourteenth cavalry and Sheriff Walton's posse of cattlemen have crossed the border into Mexico below Glenn Springs, Texas, to avenge the raid of Friday night, according to advices reaching the base of the new expedition today. Ten Americans are missing, two of whom have been officially reported killed and the troops are riding hard in an effort to save the lives of others.

W. L. Mathews, who arrived here with three men wounded in the raid, declared a Carranzista officers' commission was found on the body of Captain Daniel Rodriguez, one of the raiders. The civilian posse came across Rodriguez' body and that of another slain raider in a patch of buffalo grass on the outskirts.

MARATHON, Texas, May 9.—Seven Americans captured by the Glenn Springs raiders have overpowered their guards and escaped to the American side of the border, bringing three Mexican guards with them as captives, according to dispatches reaching the new expeditionary base here today.

Leaving Marathon at daybreak, Colonel Sibley, commanding the expedition, declared the troops have permission to cross the border to save American lives. Captain Casper Cole, commanding the invading troops, is heading his force toward Porto Rico de Boquillas, a mining center a short distance below the border where American employes are reported in danger. Major Langhorne's Eighth cavalry, from El Paso, encamped last night at Henderson's ranch, 34 miles south of Marathon, and planned a march of 28 miles today to Miller's ranch, hoping soon to follow Cole's command into Mexico. Sibley headed two cavalry troops and a machine gun platoon. The troops are expected to try and overtake the Fourteenth cavalry before the border is reached.

Jesse Deemer, rancher, and Munro Payne, his Negro employe, are missing and reported to have been killed. Jesus Acalja, an American, was arrested at the same time as the Deemer ranch. The trio were last reported being led across the international line below Glenn Springs with ropes around their necks. Unconfirmed reports said they were strangled to death later.

Other Americans for whose safety grave fears are felt are R. R. Hasbrouck and Carl P. Halter, employes of the International Mining company at Porto Rico de Boquillas. Thomas W. Roberts and his sons, Edward and

CONGREGATIONAL DELEGATES GO TO SPARTA MEETING

The annual convention of the La Crosse district Congregational churches opened at the Congregational church in Sparta at 1:45 this afternoon with a business session.

Those in attendance from La Crosse are Rev. and Mrs. Carlos C. Rowilson, Mrs. G. Brettnall and Mrs. L. C. Colman. Others will probably leave La Crosse tonight. The convention will last until tomorrow evening.

Officers were elected this afternoon, and the subject of Sunday school and church efficiency was taken up.

Rev. Robert Black, pastor of a Congregational church in the Philippine Islands, and Rev. Whitcomb, moderator of the convention, will speak. Rev. Whitcomb will give the annual convention sermon.

J. E. Roberts, and J. W. Cowan, all of San Francisco, and a Negro named Strauss.

Elude Bandits

Four Americans at Tramway Crossing, near the border, were reported to have eluded the bandits in delayed dispatches dated Saturday afternoon. No doubt remained, however, that L. Coy gave his life in a futile effort to warn the Porto Rico de Boquillas settlement of their danger. He became separated from a party that set out for the international line and his body is reported to have been found with the throat cut.

O. G. Compton, at first reported killed, arrived here in an army motor truck with private Tyree, also reported captured, and Corporal Smith, and told a vivid story of the raid.

Wore Kerchiefs

"I was awakened Friday night by cavalry marching past my home," said Compton. "I peered out my bedroom window and saw 75 Mexicans riding in groups toward the settlement. Two drew handkerchiefs about their faces and rode up to my door to ask if any American soldiers resided with us. I told them only my family lived there and they asked the way to the camp. By this time the advanced Mexicans had reached the town and the shooting began. The pair leaped onto their horses and rode up to the fight. I heard shouting and rifle fire and took my place at the window with my own rifle, determined to defend my children, Garnett, Louise and Howard. But they awoke and started crying and I lost my nerve. I couldn't stand being still any longer. Seizing Louise in my arms, I ran to the home of a Mexican washerwoman and left her there. Things were pretty lively by this time; the wax factory was blazing, lighting up the whole town.

Mexicans Everywhere
"I started to run back for the other children but there were Mexicans everywhere. I backed into the main corral, stopping to fire an occasional shot. Then I was hit. I dropped and crawled to a creek bed some distance away, and came across Tyree. He was terribly hurt about the arms and body. Saturday morning I saw Mexicans still running about the town. We couldn't stay there in the creek bed in the sun all day so we crawled to a cave carrying the few cartridges we had left and our guns. Sunday noon we saw the American posse in town and came down out of the cave.

Son Dead; Home Looted
"I found my son Garnett dead and my home looted. Louise was still with the washerwoman and Howard was wandering about the town."

HIGBEE DIRECTS VERDICT FOR SALTZ

Judge Edward C. Higbee today directed a verdict for John F. Saltz, real estate dealer, in his second suit for the recovery of commissions for the sale of property belonging to Mrs. Ingeborg Jensen. The jury, acting on the court's charge, returned judgment in favor of Saltz. He will recover $181 and costs.

Judge Higbee granted a rehearing at the close of the first trial, when judgment was brought in favor of the real estate dealer.

Attorneys Thomas Morris, F. H. Hartwell and Arthur F. Holmes represented Saltz. Attorney A. C. Wolfe defended Mrs. Jensen.

The suits of Frank Strupp vs. R. E. McAdams, and F. H. Peaty vs. The Castle Engineering company were settled, it was announced today. Erick Butler, charged with a statutory offense, pleaded guilty yesterday afternoon. Final disposition of his case will be made by Judge Higbee tomorrow.

Two jurors were excused by Judge Higbee when the venire was called this morning, and one juror did not make an appearance. Julius Huff declared that he was not a citizen of the United States and Paul Bnol was dismissed on account of the illness of his wife. Edward Raymond did not appear.

He that makes himself the common jester of a company, has but just wit enough to be a fool.

This Wreck Will Not Be Repaired
Unless City Comes to Aid of Baseballers

Wreckage of the baseball park grandstand following the storm of Sunday night. The pictures show the street-car which plowed into the wreckage a minute after the gale had overturned it upon the car tracks. Motorman William Herber was badly cut about the face.

Unless citizens of La Crosse come to the aid of the La Crosse Professional Baseball association, whose coffers are now devoid of cash, League Park and baseball games on the familiar old diamond on La Crosse street may be a thing of the past. The grandstand was blown over by the high wind of Sunday night and completely wrecked.

"The treasury of the association is empty," said John A. Elliott, secretary of the association and the most prominent baseball fan of La Crosse. "The only way we can build a new park grandstand is for the people of this city to come to the front with donations."

A meeting of directors of the association will be held during the latter part of the week. The directors are J. A. Elliott, John A. Miller, A. W. Langenbach, Henry Rooney and Charles A. Hunt. Mr. Mills is president of the association.

(Beauty Topics.) By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face: With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the not wanted hairs; apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. S. S. S., GREATEST BLOOD REMEDY, GIVES RESULTS WHEN OTHERS FAIL

Nature's Remedy for Blood Troubles.

The purifying and curative properties of Nature's great remedy have made "S. S. S. for the Blood" a household name. Thousands today enjoying perfect health owe their recovery from blood or skin diseases to this universally used blood purifier. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, which possess cleansing and healing ingredients. You cannot be well when your blood is impure; you lack strength and energy natural with health; your complexion becomes pale and sallow; your vitality is weakened. When waste or refuse matter, which Nature intends shall be thrown off, is left in the system, it is absorbed into the blood and boils, pimples, rashes, blotches and other eruptions of the skin appear. S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of blood taint or poison of every character. All skin diseases and eruptions pass away, and the smooth, clear skin, glowing with health, shows that the body is being nourished by rich, pure blood. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, are all deep-seated blood disorders, and for their treatment nothing equals S. S. S. Get S. S. S. at any drug store. Don't accept a substitute. MRS. CHAPMAN DIES AT HOME NEAR THE VILLAGE VIROQUA

Heart Failure Takes Well Known Vernon County Woman as She Works About Her Farm

VIROQUA, Wis., May 9.—(Special).—The death of Mrs. Herbert Chapman occurred at her farm home a mile west of town at an early hour Sunday morning. Mrs. Chapman had arisen early and assisted with the work when she was suddenly stricken with heart failure.

They carried her to a couch where she expired five minutes later. Mrs. Chapman has been a sufferer in the past, but had seemed quite well recently and had visited friends in the city Friday. She had, however, confided to a friend, her intentions of going to La Crosse for consultation the following week.

Mrs. Chapman, who was Mary McConnell before her marriage, has lived in or near Viroqua all her life and was over fifty years of age.

She leaves a husband and one son and a spinster sister, who has made her home with the Chapmans for years. She has another sister living in Portland, Oregon, who, on account of a serious operation performed recently, will not be able to attend the funeral.

Local and Personal Ole Tuhus has purchased the Hiles grocery store on North Main street and will take possession soon. Mr. Tuhus has had experience in the mercantile business, having conducted a general store at Melving for a number of years, but has of late been associated in the real estate business.

Mrs. L. R. Gott returned home Friday from Syracuse, N. Y., where she spent the winter with her daughter, Amy.

F. E. Nelson, who has served as postmaster at Cashton for eleven years, has retired. The new postmaster, John Cremer, assumed his duties Thursday.

Miss Myrtle Larson is home from Wausau, where she completed a year's course at the Wausau Business college.

The many friends of Miss Bessie Potts of this city who underwent a serious operation at a Madison hospital Wednesday, will be glad to hear that she is slowly but steadily recovering. For a few days all hope of her life was despaired of.

Peter Omsrud is recovering from a severe case of pneumonia.

That man is happy who has a true friend in his utmost need; but happier is he, that has no need of a friend.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing with Soap

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified coconut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

NORMAL SENIORS PLAN TO LEAVE STUDENT AID FUND

The senior class of the normal believes in leaving behind something worth while. In the past, graduating classes have purchased pictures and statuary for the adornment of the walls. The class of 1916 believes it would be doing a far greater service for the school by founding a fund from which worthy students can draw financial assistance.

The memento committee appointed by the class for the purpose of advising a plan for the disposition of the class funds, and the selection of a token for the school, has agreed that the best thing for the interests of the school and the students is a Student Aid fund.

It has often happened in the history of the local institution that the lack of a few dollars has compelled students to leave school and give up the pursuit of their studies.

The plan of the committee is being looked upon with favor by the seniors and will probably be accepted.

THAT TIRED FEELING

During April more cases of tuberculosis are generally reported in Wisconsin than in any other month of the year. I know of nothing about the disease which would make it actually more prevalent during this month than in any other. As a matter of fact it probably isn't because we know that on account of the chronic nature of the disease and the slowness of patients to present themselves for medical examination or diagnosis, the condition has usually been present for some months or even years before its discovery.

It would be interesting to know if the rigors of Wisconsin winters have a part in so depressing the health of these patients as to make further evasion of the truth possible. It is more likely that the still too prevalent cold weather custom of sleeping and living in badly ventilated

Thin Folks Who Want to Get Fat

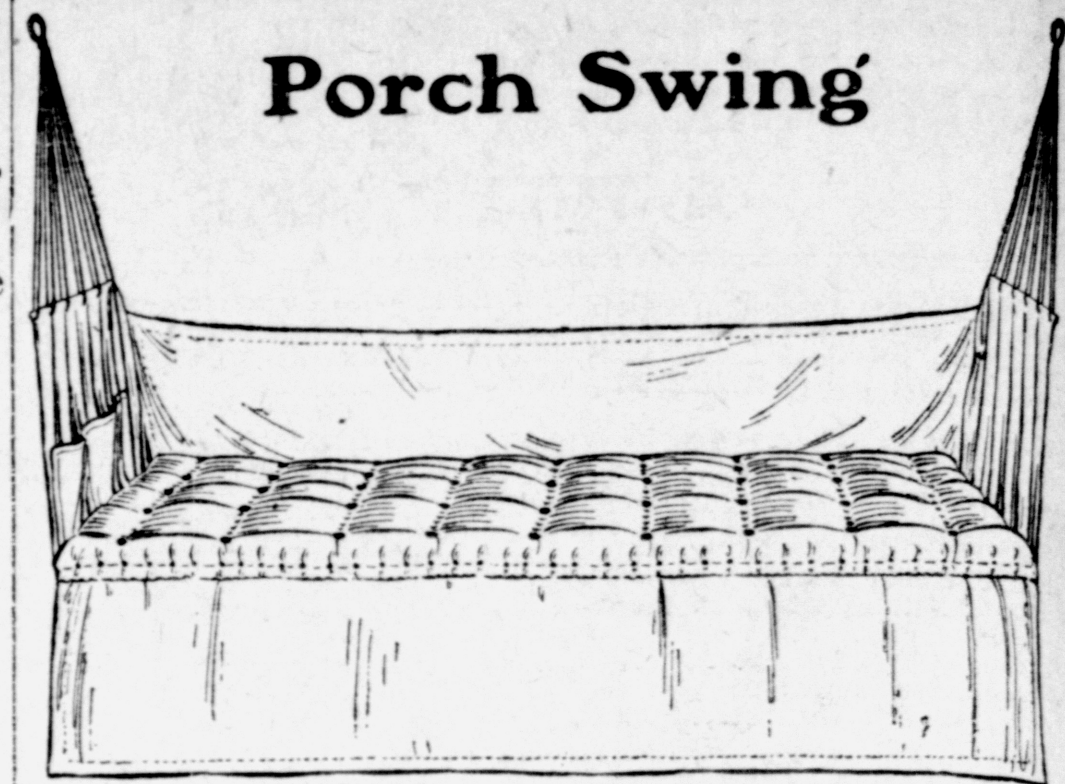

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are, when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat, the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can probably best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a careful combination of six splendid assimilable agents. Taken with meals they mix with the food to turn the sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect has been in many cases reported remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by Hoeschler Bros., and other druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.
